The Social Security Board announced Wednesday that claims for benefit payments of two types may be filed with the board by Circleville and Pickaway County residents.

Bellefontaine Prosecutor Blames Donald Slater In Fatal Plot

DECEASED'S WIFE CITED

'Triangle' Being Probed By Authorities; Body Found At Miamisburg

BELLEFONTAINE, Feb. 7—Ascribing jealousy over a woman 32 years his senior as the motive, Prosecutor J. Ewing Smith announced today that an 18-year-old roomer, Donald Slater, has confessed slaying his landlady's husband, Fred Jenkins, 56.

First degree murder charges will be filed against Slater and accessory charges will be lodged against the widow, Mrs. Minnie Jenkins, 50, and her son, Merlin, 18, the prosecutor declared.

Smith asserted that young Slater and Mrs. Jenkins had been "carrying on an affair." The body of Jenkins, a railroad telegrapher, was found near Dayton Saturday night. He had been bludgeoned to death and his body dumped beside a highway.

Slater and Merlin Jenkins attended Miami University together last fall, leaving after one semester. Since then Slater has roomed in the Jenkins home at Huntsville, near Bellefontaine.

Hammer Borrowed

According to the prosecutor, the youth confessed that he obtained a hammer from a restaurant operated by Mrs. Jenkins, then went to the residence and struck the husband on the head while he was asleep.

Loading the body into car, Slater drove to a point near Miamisburg in the vicinity of Dayton and left it beside the road. The deed, Smith charged was done with the "full knowledge" of Mrs. Jenkins and her son, Merlin.

Ned Blair, a farm laborer, discovered the body, clad only in undergarments. Its frozen condition prevented Coroner R. D. Snyder from performing a post-mortem examination, but he found that death resulted from a blow which shattered the skull.

Until yesterday the victim had remained unidentified. Then Mrs. Jenkins, learning from newspaper accounts that he wore a lodge ring (Continued on Page Four)

TAFT WILL NOT FILE NAME FOR ILLINOIS VOTES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, prominent Republican presidential candidate, formally announced today he would not enter the Illinois primary April 9.

Taft for some time had been considering entrance of a slate of delegates in the Illinois race, and the filing of his name on the preferential ballot, but today decided he would not do so.

Taft gave as his reasons for refusing to enter the Illinois primary the fact that he had been unable to make a personal campaign in the state.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York recently announced that his name would be on the ballot as a presidential candidate in Illinois and Senator Vandenberg has announced like Taft that he would not be a candidate in that state.

KERNS PLACED ON PROBATION IN DEATH CASE

Manslaughter Indictment Confessed; Little Boy Victim Of Auto

Judge Meeker Terwilliger, Wednesday, placed Herbert Kerns, 22, of Meade, Pickaway Township, on a year's probation after Kerns pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree manslaughter in the traffic death December 24 of John William Moore, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Moore, Pickaway Township farm tenants.

Kerns, indicted by the grand jury last week, had previously entered a plea of not guilty and was freed under $2,000 bond pending trial. The guilty plea was made in exchange for the probation decision.

The Moore child died December 24 a day after it was struck by Kerns' car which was traveling on the Kingston Pike. The little boy started to cross the road in front of his father's residence when he was struck. The child was carried 150 feet on the car's bumper, the vehicle traveling 300 feet before it stopped. Deputy sheriffs who filed charges against Kerns claimed that his car did not have proper brakes.

Youths, Members Of Irish Republican Army, Pay For Killing Five

LONDON FEARS TROUBLE

Armed Men Shadow High Officials Against Reprisals

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Feb. 7—Peter Barnes and James Richards, youthful members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, paid the extreme penalty today for their part in the bomb explosions last August at Coventry which killed five persons.

The two Irishmen were hanged at 9 a. m. (4 a. m. Circleville time), after moves by the Eire government to gain them a reprieve failed.

The executions passed off quietly as the clock chimed. A crowd of about 100 persons, most of them Irishmen, stood in police-cordoned side streets near the prison and bared their heads as the clock tolled the hour.

At 9:07 a. m. a notice posted on the prison gate confirmed that the two men had been hanged simultaneously.

As the hour for the executions approached, police intensified their precautions near the prison, moving back a crowd which had been gathering since dawn at the (Continued on Page Four)

GARNER MOVES INTO RANK WITH ECONOMY GROUP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—Vice President Garner, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, today headed the senate economy bloc as it continued its assault on President Roosevelt's budget.

Garner broke a tie vote in the senate yesterday in favor of the economy forces during consideration of the independent offices supply bill.

Attaching significance to his action, bloc members said that while discussing the vote with him, he said:

"When it comes to reducing government appropriations I will always vote yes, but when it comes to increasing appropriations I will always vote no."

Garner's action gave encouragement to economy-minded senators. It was the first time he had voted to break a tie vote since 1934. His vote sustained a committee out of $115,259 in funds for the Civil Aeronautics Authority Air Safety Board. If Garner had not broken the 34 to 34 tie the committee amendment would have been defeated.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars were made available by the decision to cities throughout the state for current relief demands.

Although funds from motor vehicle tags will not be received by the counties for some months, (Continued on Page Four)

BRIT SHIP GOES DOWN IN IRISH SEA; ALL SAVED

LONDON, Feb. 7—The 4,302-ton British coastal steamer Munster was sunk off England today, presumably by a mine or a German submarine.

The passengers and crew, numbering approximately 200, were brought ashore by a tramp steamer and all were believed landed safely.

The Munster, a crack ship known to thousands of Americans who have traveled the cross-channel route to Ireland from England, apparently went down somewhere in the Irish Sea.

The passengers and crew were landed at an undisclosed northwestern port. The cause of the explosion was not revealed.

The Munster was known as the largest cross-channel motor vessel in the world.

Some members of the crew were injured and rushed to hospitals in ambulances summoned to the docks soon after the sinking.

RUMORS SPREAD THAT ARMISTICE APPEAL IS NEAR

Swedish Publications Cite Possibility; Authorities Doubt Authenticity

BITTER WAR CONTINUES

Reds Lose Many Soldiers In Continuous Drives In Frigid Districts

By International News Service

Save for circulation of a new crop of rumors, Europe's conflicts conformed today to what is becoming almost a set pattern—heavy fighting in Finland and relative inactivity in the war between Germany and the Allies.

The rumors, spread by the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter and other organs in various capitals, told of plans by high German officials to bring about an early armistice in the Russo-Finnish war.

High Swedish political circles, however, scouted the rumors, saying they did not believe Berlin would make any move that might interfere with Russian aims.

Bitter fighting on the Karelian Isthmus in Finland seemed to portend anything but an early truce. There Russian assaults against the Summa sector of the Mannerheim Line produced some of the most severe fighting of the entire conflict as waves of Red army infantrymen, supported by planes, smashed futilely against the Finnish defenses.

Thousands Killed

Thousands of Russian soldiers have been killed in the Summa battle, which entered its seventh day, according to officers who returned to Helsinki from the front.

Military authorities in Helsinki claimed that the Soviet attacks, supported by bombing planes and terrific artillery barrages, were being thrown back by the Finns. They said the Russians were keeping up the assaults day and night in the hope of exhausting the defenders.

(An official Soviet war communique issued in Moscow made no mention of the fighting on the Mannerheim Line in the Karelian Isthmus. It merely stated that there were "encounters between small infantry detachments north of Lake Ladoga" and that Russian planes carried out reconnaissance flights.)

The fighting for possession of the Finnish-held village of Summa raged along a ten-mile front as the Soviets pounded the sector from two directions, supported by 150 tanks.

Reports from the battle zone said that five separate Soviet infantry attacks were repulsed in severe fighting that followed a long Russian artillery barrage. The Russians suffered heavy losses in men and at least 22 tanks were destroyed.

Communications Menaced

Likewise the Russians maintained their pressure on the other fronts, including the area northeast of Lake Ladoga, where they repeatedly assailed the Finnish flank positions on the shores of the lake and in the island fortresses. These attacks were turned back and hundreds of Russians were killed by the Finns, who drove forward to harass the Russian communication lines.

'GREAT PROFILE' ENTERS HOSPITAL TO GET REST

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—Things have been so hectic for John Barrymore since he entered foot in New York in his new play that he had to enter a hospital early today to get a good night's rest.

The "great profile" entered Mt. Sinai hospital at 1 o'clock this morning for nothing more serious than a good snooze, according to Elaine Barrie, the wife with whom he recently became reconciled. The hospital records, however, stated he was there for "observation."

But word went out that Barrymore would appear on schedule for his matinee and night performances.

GABLES MISSING WEEK AGO FETE THEIR FRIENDS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—After providing friends with game for duck dinners, Clark Gable and Carole Lombard were back for more birds today near Ensenada, Mexico, where a week ago they were reported missing.

The film couple came back to Hollywood yesterday in a plane piloted by Paul Mantz, bearing 36 ducks which they distributed among friends, and then flew back to Mexico.

"We don't know how the rumors got started that we were missing or in trouble, but it was probably because of poor communications and bad weather," Gable said. "We are enjoying ourselves to the utmost, and that's why we are going back for a while."

Theatres' Mid-Week Bills Interesting

At the Cliftona

Co-starred for the first time in what promises to be the musical sensation of the season, Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell join forces in "Broadway Melody of 1940," coming to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday for an engagement of three days.

Containing every conceivable type of dance number, from tap to ballet, "Broadway Melody of 1940" tells the story of a dance star and her search for a partner. The plot becomes complicated when, through an old complication, George Murphy gets the try-out call intended for Fred Astaire. Murphy wins the role and Astaire, content to remain in the background, finds his hands full attempting to keep Murphy's feet on the ground and his head down to normal size. The final outcome is one that keeps audiences guessing.

Set to special music written by Cole Porter, the dance numbers are presented against spectacular sets, outdoing in size those used for any previous production. The finale, "Begin the Beguine," introduces a new note in dance presentation by staging the number against a mirror, sixty feet square, which swings on hinges and shoots varying backgrounds into the camera lens. The number was more than two weeks in shooting.

Other Cole Porter tunes to which dances are presented include "Please Don't Monkey with Broadway," "Between You and Me," "I've Got My Eyes on You," "I Happen to Be in Love" and "I Concentrate on You."

With a cast of 135 actresses, headed by Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell, the drama contains all of the elements of top adult entertainment with laughs and tears. The new drama marks the return to the society type of drama by Norma Shearer, who gives an excellent and sympathetic portrayal of the woman whose home is wrecked through the gossiping of her friends. Joan Crawford, seen for the first time in her career as a "heavy," is sincere and convincing in every scene, and Rosalind Russell's portrayal of an arch-gossip adds another triumph to her list of screen successes.

Nelson Dunlap Pays His Annual Courthouse Visit

Nelson Dunlap, Pickaway Township, made his way up the steps of the Court House and went in to the county treasurer's office. He paid his taxes and then dropped in to visit the boys in the auditor's office.

Yes, he remembered the boys. He even remembered the boys' fathers when they were boys. Nelson will be 95 this spring, although he himself is not quite sure how old he is.

Nelson greeted the boys heartily and said they were looking well and have grown some. He wasn't looking so badly himself in his trim gray beard.

"How old are you, Mr. Dunlap," someone asked.

"I don't quite remember, but I can figure it out in a little while," he answered.

"We had plenty of winter this year," Auditor Forrest Short said. "You ought to go down to Florida."

"Not me," was the reply. "This country is good enough for me." His unbespectacled eyes twinkling, he bade the boys good bye and left the Court House, walking with a brisk stride and the aid of a gnarled cane.

The boys wished that if and when they get close to the century mark they might be as sprightly as the man who visits the Court House yearly to get his taxes paid on time.

Mr. Dunlap, father of former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Renick Dunlap, lives near Kingston.

Republicans—McGregor, 7,648; Col. Oliver H. Dockery, Newark, 3,109; Walter B. Woodward, Belleville, 3,010.

The vote in the 17th district totaled approximately 24,000 as compared with 53,527 in the 1938 Congressional primary.

Election officials estimated the cost of the primary in the 22nd district at $50,000, or about $2.50 for each vote. The cost in the 17th district was $23,000, almost $1 per vote.

McGregor, who had Republican organization support, carried five of the six counties in his district, losing only Licking to Colonel Dockery by a plurality of 367.

In the Democratic race, Ashbrook carried Ashland, Coshocton and Knox counties; Arneson, a professor at Ohio Wesleyan University, won in Delaware County; Cave, former speaker of the Ohio

PATRIOT GOES ON AIR

An 85 year old patriot—Mrs. Lola A. Kling, of Campbell, Calif. who was killed at the age of four by Abraham Lincoln after she had wagged an impudent tongue at him, will be Lanny Ross' leading lady for a day on Lincoln's birthday, Monday February 12, 2 p. m., over CBS, when Lanny sings her memory song, "Dixie." Mrs. Kling, a Virginian by birth, was walking through the streets of Washington with her colored Mammy when she spied the Yankee president approaching. As he went by, she stuck out her tongue. Lincoln picked her up. "Someday," he told her when he found out she was a southerner, "I hope you will realize that I am fighting for your people, not against them." Later, when the Yankees were victorious, the President ordered the Yankee band to play "Dixie" along with the "Star Spangled Banner" in the victory march.

Republicans Jubilant

Republican leaders hailed the heavy GOP vote as an indication they would win both seats in the special election.

"It is significant," said Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr, "that in both district, Republicans polled larger votes than did the Democrats, even though Mrs. Bolton, the Republican candidate in the 22nd, had no opposition."

while, that the Soviet activities in the northern areas of Finland are becoming weaker. Russian bombers carried out air raids in the North, killing three persons and wounding 13, but Finnish planes retaliated by bombing Soviet troop concentrations and supply columns.

In far-off India, meanwhile, Mohandas K. Gandhi expressed hope that the Nationalistic Congress dispute with the British government on the question of dominion status for India might be settled.

He said he could not regard his negotiations with the viceroy as broken, and added:

"I think and hope they are only suspended."

VIC TO ENTER OHIO CAMPAIGN

from Ohio. It met with everybody's approval.

Earlier, Executive Committee Chairman Arthur Limbach tried to force Donahy into the race as a favorite son "stalking-horse" for President Roosevelt. This, Donahy, refused to do.

Through International News Service, Donahy announced he had never been consulted about such a plan and had no idea of approving it. He also strongly intimated he would not become a stalking-horse for anybody under any circumstances.

Just recently, Donahy told friends he would not enter the primaries and expressed the hope that Ohio Democrats would get a chance for a free-for-all choice among all Democratic possibilities. This induced Vice President John Nance Garner to disclose he was ready to enter the Ohio primaries if Donahy were not a favorite son candidate.

The thought of Garner entering Ohio, with a chance of winning the delegation against any other favorite son than Donahy, aroused the fears of third term New Dealers. Some of the latter favored entry of National Committee member Charles Sawyer as a favorite son but others protested he might be defeated by Garner. Sawyer, who beat Governor Martin Dacey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1938, was in turn defeated by Governor Bricker in the succeeding election.

Move to Donahy

At any rate, Garner's activity brought Buckeye emissaries to Donahy, who urged him to reconsider and to enter the primaries as a favorite son without any strings attached. Donahy finally agreed, at yesterday's conferences, to do this.

The Columbus conference will be called by Earl Hanefeld, chairman of the central committee, within the next few days. Then Donahy will be drafted.

prison gates. Traffic was diverted away from the prison.

Later the crowds, closely supervised by police, were permitted to file past the gates and see the execution notices which were placed in a black frame.

Mobilized armed police formed a double ring around Windsor prison in Birmingham where the executions were carried out, to prevent possible last-minute attempts to free Barnes and Richards.

Cabinet Guarded

Likewise, in London, British cabinet ministers were kept under a close guard following yesterday's renewed bomb outrages in London, Birmingham and Manchester, in which at least six persons were injured.

British authorities blamed the I.R.A. for 291 explosions in recent months in which seven persons have been killed and 96 injured. The explosions are part of the I.R.A. campaign to force the British government to end the partition of Ireland and place Ulster (northern Ireland) under the Dublin government.

All members of the British cabinet were given police protection, particularly Sir John Anderson, home secretary, who refused to interfere with the death sentences imposed on Barnes and Richards. It was feared Sir John might be a special target for I.R.A. sympathizers, and three plain clothes detectives shadowed him constantly.

Hundreds of detectives guarded postoffices, railway stations and similar public buildings to prevent further bomb outrages and other disorders.

Late last night a priest gave extreme unction to the two condemned men, who appeared resigned to their fate after being informed that efforts to save them had proved futile.

Everywhere in England, but especially in the Birmingham region, authorities were alert to prevent a repetition of yesterday's bomb blasts which shook London, Birmingham and Manchester in protest against the hanging of Barnes and Richards. The blasts centered in railway stations and postoffices.

similar to that of her husband, telephoned the sheriff at Dayton. Identification was announced after the widow and a brother-in-law, Carl C. Jenkins, of Huntsville, viewed the body.

This morning Logan County authorities brought Mrs. Jenkins, her children, Merlin and Joan, 14, and Slater from Huntsville to Bellefontaine for questioning. A short time later Prosecutor Smith announced that Slater had confessed. The daughter, Joan, he said, was absolved of any connection with the crime.

But the prosecutor said that Slater calmly admitted killing Jenkins last Thursday night and driving 75 miles with the body to the spot where it was found two days later.

Face Down in Snow
When found, the body was lying face downward in snow, frozen in an icy crust. Marks on the embankment indicated that Jenkins' body had been rolled down the steep slope.

Railway Company Joins In City's Drive To Retain Title As Safest

SKID TESTS SUCCESS

Various Types Of Highway
And Street Materials
Being Checked

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7.—Anxious to keep its title of "safest big city in America," Cleveland is skipping no chance to make its citizens traffic conscious.

The desire to maintain the low traffic death record has spread to the Cleveland Railway Company operator of the city's trolley and bus services.

The city traffic division also has taken up the safety first issue and recently tested Cleveland's "skid-diest" streets.

Now before the railway company trusts a man on the city's tracks and streets he must first go through a simple, but ingenious test with a model train.

Mounted on a table, the apparatus puts the operator through many types of difficult traffic crises designed to test his mental alertness and coolness in an emergency.

Two engines run on separate tracks, one continuously, the other controlled by the operator. The tracks cross twice and run close together at four other sections.

A Difficult Test

If the engines meet at any of these six points they are derailed and the chief concern of the operator is to prevent this from happening.

Scattered over the train table are a series of lights, two of which blink off intermittently. As the operator directs the trains through the lights the speed of his reactions is punched on a ticker tape.

Walter J. McCarter, the company's superintendent of traffic, designed the intricate system 10 years ago and it has been in use ever since.

The test is said to eliminate more than 25 of the 125 applicants who apply annually as unqualified.

The skid tests resulted from the question whether a motorist can stop his car suddenly in 25 feet providing he is alert, brakes are in good condition and tires have good tread.

Safety engineers claim the answer probably is buried in the surface of the road—whether the road has high or low co-efficient of friction.

Several Streets Tested

Several Cleveland streets have been tested for this high or low friction with a car specially equipped with air-operated hydraulic brakes and so adjusted that equal pressure is applied on all test stops.

Another device accurately marks the pavement where the brakes are applied for the purpose of measuring the skid. It consists of a revolver loaded with paint pigment cartridges which is electrically fired by a switch attached to the brakes.

On one type of surface a car will skid 15 feet on a wet pavement, while on another type it will skid as much as 45 feet.

As a result of these experiments the friction value of various types of highway and street materials can be learned, with a view toward cutting down the number of fatal accidents.

1938 Traffic Toll

When the National Safety Council in Chicago made the award to Cleveland in 1938 of the "safest big city in America" there were 130 traffic deaths during the 12 months.

In 1939 this was cut by 15 to 115 deaths, according to Capt. Chester Burnett of the police statistical department.

Members of the city council co-operated with police officials last year in keeping the streets safe for pedestrians and motorists.
Councilmen were made chairman of safety committees in their wards and they appointed committees which conducted inter-ward safety contests.

The value of these contests proved itself in the low traffic death rate for 1939. They will be continued this year, with a few new features added, Burnett said.

In ancient ruined villages of Peru, houses have been found which extended two stories underground.

Efforts Of Common Law

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Ludwig Lewisohn, 58, the author, and his bride, the former Edna Manley, 31, a Rochester, N. Y., newspaper writer, were honeymooning quietly today in a New York apartment but more troubles were threatening their marital tranquility.

On his arrival in New York last night, Lewisohn declared he would begin a court battle against Thelma Spear, 42, his admitted common-law wife for 16 years, in order to obtain custody of their son, James Elias, 6.

SOCIETY THIEF'S
ARREST CLEARS
TEXAS CRIMES

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 7.—A modern Raffles paced his jail cell today, worrying over the possibility the government will charge him with evading the payment of taxes on income derived from $250,000 worth of loot police say he stole from Houston homes the last four years.

Meanwhile police sought the accomplice of Fred Johnson, self-styled society burglar from whose apartment they recovered jewelry and other valuables with an estimated worth of $150,000.

Johnson, who is 46, was arrested on suspicion Sunday night when officers in a prowler car discovered him in a select residential section. In his automobile they found a pistol, three flashlights, burglar tools, and a ring of skeleton keys. And on Johnson's person they found a little black notebook they taining names and addresses, police said, of intended victims, including Mayor Oscar Holcombe and Police Chief L. C. Brown.

A search of Johnson's apartment over a garage unearthed a wealth of loot. He kept it, he said, rather than dispose of it at unsatisfactory price. Among Johnson's effects detectives found clues which led them to believe he had an accomplice.

Johnson readily admitted his almost unbelievable burglary career, authorities said. He said he habitually read the newspaper society columns seeking news of wealthy persons leaving Houston on vacations and other leads to possible homes to rob. Hundreds of society clippings were found in the apartment, as well as many detective books. Johnson said he was avid reader of detective stories, as well as stories of the world's famed burglars from which, he said, he gained many ideas for pursuing his burglary career.

Johnson's fear of federal prosecution was prompted by the action of Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Joe Jamar, who announced he was probing the burglar's income.

Houston society victimized with in the last four years trooped to police headquarters today in an attempt to identify their valuables.

County Organization Takes

TRYOUTS ON SCHEDULE

16 Entries Listed Already
By Extension Agent;
Judge Chosen

Pickaway County 4-H Clubs are taking over Radio Station WOSU at Ohio State University Monday night, February 19, when they will broadcast on the Farm Night Hour at 8 o'clock.

To select talent for the program the clubs throughout the county will participate in an Amateur program in Circleville Monday evening, February 12. Each club is selecting a group of entertainers to compete in the amateur program and the winners will do the broadcasting one week later over the radio station. Club leaders are making the final selections that will be represented in the Circleville competition.

The talent may be in the form of vocal, instrumental, duet, chorus, dance, monologue, discussion or written paper on some phase of 4-H club work. F. K. Blair, county extension agent, said that from the excellent achievement programs given by the various clubs in the fall, a large program of good numbers should be an easy matter to get.

The judge for the amateur program will be an official from the radio station who will select the numbers that he thinks are best suited for broadcasting. To date there are 16 entries, but the place of the competition has not been designated.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF GAS
ON HAND, SAYS MCCLAIN

Dan McClain, local manager of The Ohio Fuel Gas Company, stated Wednesday that his company has had no trouble in maintaining a steady pressure during the extreme cold weather.

"Our company was prepared to meet the demand by additional compressor stations and the storing of natural gas in the dry wells in Hooking County."

During mild weather gas is transported from Kentucky, West Virginia and Texas fields and stored in the wells that have been exhausted. The restoring method is made possible through the use of the modern compressor stations at South Bloomingville on Route 56.

THE FROG MENACE

THE sport of frog-jumping, made famous by Mark Twain in one of his frontier stories, is a grand pastime but isn't appreciated by everybody. Many people, especially women, have to develop a taste for it. Sprung on them too suddenly, they don't appreciate it.

There was a good example recently in a Chicago night club. A woman singer who was quite sophisticated about frogs, and had one named Daniel, brought him into the place and bragged that he could out-jump any specimen in the club's aquarium.

When the contest started, the batrachian athletes got excited and began jumping wildly in all directions. One of them happened to land in the lap of a woman customer, who screamed and fell on the floor. And then another woman near by fell off her chair and got hurt. The result was a damage case in which the proprietor of the cafe and the owner of the frog were sued for a lot of money because the victim had become "sick, sore, lame and disordered."

It looks as if this frog business is going too far. Frogs are all right warbling in a pool among the willows, but you can't have them jumping all over everything indoors and getting excited and landing in the laps of ladies who have had a few drinks. They may mean well, but they're too clammy and unpredictable.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

IN THE course of a very few days recently Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana developed from a mere possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination into quite a formidable candidate. He's been mentioned all along, to be sure, but only as a longshot heretofore. Now it appears that he's to be reckoned with seriously. To say that he's the leading probability would be an exaggeration at present. Nevertheless, he's somewhere in the leading group, anyway.

Of course this is leaving out of consideration the chance that President Roosevelt consents to be drafted for a third term in the White House. If he does so, the best political betting is that he WILL be drafted. The question whether or not he can be re-elected is open to discussion, but it generally is conceded that he can be RENOMINATED — if he tactically wants to be.

Senator Wheeler himself agrees that F. D., though he may not choose to try for his own successors, undoubtedly can foreclose against any other Democrat whom he may object to.

Yet it doesn't follow that the president can PICK his preferred candidate and make his party's convention acquiesce in his selection.

Much earlier in the game the popular political impression was that F. D. favored Henry A. Wallace, Harold L. Ickes or Harry L. Hopkins. All these have gone floozy for various reasons. Then Paul V. McNutt got into the limelight. He hasn't made particularly good. Today he doesn't look to be as safe a gamble as Wheeler—not with the public, whatever F. D. may think about it.

GARNER AND HULL

Then there are John N. Garner and Cordell Hull.

Nobody believes that Garner can be acceptable to the New Dealers. Hull is an old-fashioned democratic (small "d") liberal. No New Dealer conscientiously can balk at him, but he isn't a Rooseveltian New Dealer.

Now, is Senator Wheeler a liberal? He IS—and "then some." He's been a rampant radical. He's fought for the I. W. W. He's spoken well of the Leninist revolution in Russia. He's been a darned sight more advanced than ever the New Deal has been. Once he succeeded from the Democratic party, to run, as a candidate in second place, on the presidential ticket with the elder Senator Robert M. La Follette.

He was a rip-snorting leftist.

But presently he turned against the New Deal on the Rooseveltian supreme court packing proposition. He led the campaign, indeed. The New Deal's story was that he'd transformed himself into a reactionary. I don't think so: I think he simply was a good democrat (small "d") on that issue. Perhaps he isn't as far to the leftward as he used to be, but he's not a rightist by any means.

However, I suspect that he'll be criticized both ways — by New Dealers as a conservative; by conservatives as an ultra-liberal.

All the same, John N. Lewis is very friendly to him and Senator George W. Norris approves of him as a presidential candidate, with

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

AIRLINE EMPLOYS GERMANS

WASHINGTON—For some months a knock-down backstage fight has been raging between the United States Government and the white-haired boy of U. S. aviation—Pan American Airways.

Pan American executives held a long conference with government officials last week and made considerable progress toward a settlement. The fight involves the use of German airplane pilots in Colombia, not far from the Panama Canal, on a Pan American subsidiary airline called SCADTA.

The fight also involves the allegation by War Department officials that SCADTA gave German pilots an opportunity to become familiar with the topography adjacent to Panama. These officials assert that some of the pilots, after being kept in Colombia for a time, returned to Germany, letting new pilots take their places.

Thus the air attaché of the German Embassy in Washington, Peter Riedel, had experience in Colombian flying while working for this Pan American subsidiary. Thus also, the German fliers who made the non-stop flight across the Atlantic last summer had worked for the Colombian airline.

Pilots of German extraction flew planes in Colombia during a period when the prime tenet of U. S. foreign policy was to combat "Nazi-Fascist infiltration into Latin America." That is why the American Government interested itself in the situation.

SCADTA BLOCKED EXPANSION

To get the complete picture it is necessary to go back ten years to the time when Pan American Airways did an excellent job of blazing a new air trail through Latin America. At that time they found their path blocked by SCADTA, a line operated in Colombia by an Austrian named Peter Von Bauer, now a Colombian citizen.

In order to fly over Colombia to the west coast of South America, it was necessary finally for Pan American's president, Juan Trippe, to buy out SCADTA at rather a high price.

This set-up continued from 1931 until October, 1938, when Chamberlain's surrender of Czechoslovakia at Munich and Hitler's increased belligerency brought on increased War Department worries regarding the proximity of German pilots to the Panama Canal.

U. S. Army strategists pointed out that one well-placed bomb could smash the locks and put the canal out of commission for months. President Roosevelt even went so far as to examine the possibility of taking over Swan Island from Costa Rica, and the Big Corn and Little Corn Islands from Nicaragua, to serve as additional air outposts to guard Panama.

CAA INVESTIGATES

So at this point the State Department, through its ambassador, Spruille Braden, began to do some sleuthing about these

DIET AND HEALTH

Animals Source of Malta Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT WAS about 50 years ago that Bruce, an English army doctor, reported a new disease from the Island of Malta. It was a long-continued, mild fever, caused by a germ which infected goats. The germ got into the goat's milk, and as goat milk is the regular dairy product in Malta, the disease was frequently transplanted in the human population.

For a long time it was complacently supposed that Malta fever did not appear outside the Island of Malta. That complacency was due for a rude awakening. The first cases of Malta fever or, as it is called here, undulant fever, seen in the United States were of the chronic type, all in soldiers or sailors who were hospitalized at Hot Springs, Arkansas, with the diagnosis of chronic rheumatism.

Many Cases Reported

Since 1920 many cases of the fever have been reported in the United States. It is, in fact, our commonest continued fever (with the exception of tuberculosis). The sources of infection are cows and pigs as well as goats. American herds are widely infected with carrier animals.

The acute form is well known as a low fever of long duration, sometimes prostrating the patient for three months or more. But the germ is hard to down; even when apparently recovered, a person may be a carrier or the victim of chronic brucellosis (still another name for it).

The commonest form is like the original cases—a chronic rheumatism. But nearly any part of the body may be the seat of the symptoms. The nose, throat and ear infections, tonsillitis, cough and chest infection, bronchitis, pleurisy, heart trouble, dyspepsia, bladder and female trouble, backache, headache, depression, apprehension, skin eruptions have all been described.

"Nervous Prostration"

Perhaps after chronic rheumatism the commonest form is general lassitude, fatigue and exhaustion, the general picture which is called "neurasthenia" or "nervous prostration." Dr. Alice C. Evans, the foremost American student of the disease, writes:

"These facts challenge the right of a physician to make a diagnosis of neurasthenia—a diagnosis regarded as dishonorable by the patient, and also by his family, his

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
ROMANY HAILE, who wants to be a radio star.
CHOLLY O'NEIL, her pal, who plays in a music store.
BRENT NELSON, successful young announcer, in love with Romany.
DOVER HAYWORTH, wealthy actor, in love with Cholly.
MYRA NOYES, famous radio star and ex-husband of Brent.
TERRY O'ROURKE, a singer who had been engaged to Cholly.
BAXTER TREE, a continuity writer without a job.
YESTERDAY: Cholly is taken back when she runs into Terry at a night club with Myra Noyes.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

WHEN CHOLLY and Romany were getting ready for bed, Romany could see that Cholly was fighting tears. She knew that seeing Terry with Myra Noyes had been a shock. But she decided it would be very bad psychology to let her friend know she saw through her effort to appear indifferent.

"You could have bowled me over," she laughed gaily, "when I saw Myra and Terry walk in. Now, where do you suppose they ever met?"

Cholly's voice was muffled.

"I—couldn't say."

"Well," Romany smiled, "I can't think of two people who would see each other more! They're a good match. If Terry was looking for a girl to borrow money from, he couldn't have done much better. And he'll make a handsome gigolo."

Cholly winced, but Romany added brutally:

"Thank heaven he has found someone else! That's the reason he hasn't been around pestering you, I guess."

"Terry looks fine, don't you think?" Cholly sat down on the floor to take off her stockings.

"I was surprised."

Romany laughed lightly.

"You didn't expect Terry to sit around and weep over you, did you? You forget men aren't like women. It doesn't take them long to turn around and see another pretty face."

"I guess you're right," Cholly said miserably. "I'm glad he was sober."

"The evening was yet young," flipped Romany.

"Maybe," sighed Cholly, "Miss Noyes will help Terry find a radio job. If he'd get a break, maybe he'd change."

"If he gets a break," Romany sniffed, he'll have just that much more money to throw away in night clubs. There's one leopard that will never change his spots. If he didn't change 'em for you, he certainly won't for Myra Noyes. Well, let's get some sleep. Tomorrow I'm a working girl."

When Romany snapped off the light, Cholly buried her head in her pillow, crying softly. Romany knew and tried to comfort her. But she felt Cholly must get Terry O'Rourke out of her system in her own way. Perhaps if Cholly believed Romany thought she was falling back on her pride, and not caring what Terry did, or with whom he was seen, it might help her.

Both the rehearsal and the broadcast of "Twilight of Love" went smoothly on Monday afternoon. Cholly tuned in from the apartment and marveled at Romany's Celeste. Her voice was low and musical, as different from the average run of cut and dried dramatic school voices as day from night.

Any one hearing Romany Haile once would never forget her. Sentimental little Charlotte wiped tears of happiness from her eyes. She was just as happy as though it were all happening to herself.

Trotter was relieved that apparently Myra had made up her mind to eat dirt as gracefully as possible. She ignored Romany as though she were mud under her feet, however, which was just as well. Romany took the same tactics with her. It was business, and that was that.

Other members of the cast were smart enough to pretend to ignore the Noyes-Haile feud. But they were secretly enjoying it. Jane Martel's smile and gaiety helped to lighten the situation in the studio. A place could never be like a morgue for long with Jane around. From the broadcast, Myra went into the press department. There were a few things she meant to find out. She sought Joe Telling.

"Come downstairs and I'll buy you a highball, Joey," she offered smiling. "It's time for you to go anyway, isn't it?"

"Yeah!" He got up. "And a little drink won't do us any harm."

Joe was pretty sure he knew why Myra was so nice to him. But it didn't worry him much. Myra waited until they were having their second highball before she came to the point.

"Joey!" She looked up then. "Tell me something. Will you?"

"Maybe," he grinned. "Shoot."

"How come the press department let Romany Haile run for the television title?"

"Any one can join up," shrugged Joe. "What's press got to do with it?"

"Well, you certainly must be spending a lot of money on her. That life-size picture in color in the lobby certainly cost a pretty penny. And she isn't an Interstate Artist. I don't get it."

"You can do a lot of things when you've got the dough."

"I get it," Myra pursed her red lips thoughtfully. "She's footing the bills."

Joe shrugged, grinning again.

"I ain't a sayin'."

Myra leaned toward him.

"Well, I've got something to tell you, Joe." Her eyes narrowed.

Romany Haile hasn't got a dime! All this heires business is a bare faced lie. Now what do you think of that?"

"Go on!" Joe motioned for another highball. "She's that rich Harlowe woman's niece, isn't she?"

"She's one of a large flock of nieces and nephews, aunts, uncles and cousins," Myra smiled slyly.

"It so happens I've got the straight goods. My new boy friend was born and brought up in the same town."

Telling pricked up his ears.

"So! Yeah, go on."

"That girl's father and mother live in a little dump down in Louisville, Indiana, and they hardly know where their next meal is coming from. The clothes she's showing off with belong to her aunt who is in Europe. When she comes back and finds she's been wearing them, she'll probably murder her."

"You're crazy!" scoffed the skeptical Joe.

"Oh, am I?" Myra laughed unpleasantly. "Terry went to school with Romany Haile. She waited tables, took care of children and did everything to get through. Besides, she borrowed money from her aunt."

"Well," Joe grinned wisely, "so that's the setup! Well, that explains something that has been puzzling me."

"For instance?" Myra leaned toward him.

When Joe had a few drinks, his tongue had no brakes on it. He looked around cautiously, then said in a whisper:

"You won't say anything, Myra. Because if you do I might lose my job."

"Of course not," Myra scoffed. "What sort of a heel do you think I am?"

"Do you really want to know where the money came from to pay for Haile's pictures?"

"Sure, tell me," urged Myra. "I'm dying to know."

Joe said thickly:

"From your ex-fiance."

Myra gasped.

"God's truth," Joe nodded. "He came in and wrote a check for two hundred bucks and said there was more where that came from. He got sore as hell when I let him see what I was thinking."

Myra bit her lip, a consuming anger sweeping over her.

"Of course it's clear now. Oh, I might have known, but I didn't think! He gave you that money because he wanted to show me up. He wants Romany Haile to win the title of Miss Television."

Joe slapped the table with his fist.

"By gad, that's a hot one! And the dame hasn't got a dime! Boy, is she smart! Well, she's certainly got the looks to go around trimming guys to get somewhere. No skin off my nose! Brent had the dough to pay for the pictures."

"The little tramp!" Myra said between clenched teeth.

"Hey!" Joe suddenly realized he'd been talking too much. "You got a grudge against the gal. Don't you go doing anything that's going to get me into trouble now."

"Don't be silly!" Myra drained the last of her third highball. Joe had consumed five. "Well, I've got to be going, Joe."

She paid the check and rushed out, leaving Telling blinking after her, befuddled. Giggling to himself, he ordered another drink. Before the evening was over he'd told three other people, in strictest confidence, that Romany Haile was a farmer's daughter and not an heiress at all. And that Brent Nelson was putting up the money to make her a radio star.

Meanwhile Brent, spending one of his rare evenings at home reading, was interrupted by a knock on the door of his hotel room.

"Come in," he called from the living room.

Too late, he discovered it was Myra. She stood in the door smiling unpleasantly.

Westminster Bible Class

"Lamps, New and Old," was the interesting topic discussed by Mrs. Helen Black Anderson Tuesday before the Westminster Bible Class when it had its February session at the home of Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey, East Mound Street.

Opening her talk with the mention of man's struggle for light from the very earliest times, she spoke of the word of God as being the light of the world. The use of the candle and lamp is mentioned in many places in the Bible.

Mrs. Anderson then traced the various types of lighting arrangements from the very primitive rush lamps, candles of various types, and oil lamps and lanterns. She told of the use of pine knots and fatwood by the early colonists. Mrs. Anderson illustrated her points with the very complete display of antique equipment which included her own valuable specimens augmented by several taken to the meeting by the members. Her talk was quite informative and deeply enjoyed as she had a store of lively anecdotes with which she enlivened her remarks.

About 28 members and guests attended the meeting. Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson, president, being in charge of the business hour. The Rev. Mr. Kelsey led the group in prayer.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were received.

A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Kelsey, assisted by Mrs. L. H. Mebs, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. Mack and Miss Florence Duntun, serving a delightful salad course. No One Kayos Godoy, Says Same Mr. Godoy

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—"Nobody knocks out Godoy!" Head erect, chest out and dark eyes flashing like those of the hero in an old time melodrama, Senor Arturo Godoy, of the Chilean Go-doy, thus put the crusher today on a suggestion that Joe Louis might flatten him in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

"No sir," said the Chilean conquistador scornfully, "that Louis he won't even put Godoy on the floor. You bet on that and you win sure."

Nevertheless, the cold-blooded Broadway bookies are quoting 5 to 2 that Godoy won't answer the bell for the sixth round and 5 to 1 that he won't go the full 15 rounds.

No bookie is quoting odds on a decision but if anybody feels that Godoy can go the route and at the same time outbox the champion, that brave hombre may write his own odds up to 20 to 1.

Ordinarily, such a betting situation would fill the sensitive soul of Promoter Mike Jacobs with untold anguish because it would denote an alarming lack of interest in the fight. But Mike believes that Louis will draw another $100,000 gate if only because the fans love to watch the sheer artistry of the man as he goes about the job of sculpturing a new landscape on the map of his opponent.

Strangely enough, Senor Godoy himself has no intention of winning a decision over the dark destroyer.

"That Louis, he's one swell boxer," is the senor's ungrudging tribute to the master of the fine art of scrambling ears. "Nobody beats him that way. But Godoy will knock him out sure."

Godoy merely laughs when anybody warns him about the dynamite that lies in Joe's iron fists, and quickly counters that Tony Galento put Louis on the floor but couldn't even budge him (Godoy) in two fights.

"Galento hits hard sure, but not hard enough to bother Godoy," says the Chilean who likes to speak of himself in the third person. "But Galento he put Louis down with ease."

"Nobody ever works on Louis down here," (pointing to his midriff), "but Godoy throws plenty left hooks there. You watch. Godoy roughs him up inside pretty good and when he's all in, bang! Like that and goodbye Louis."

Well, it's a good trick if it works and nobody can blame Senor Godoy for giving it a try but even Godoy's best friends hate to recall what happened to poor Primo Carnera one night when he became imbued with the idea that he could rough up Louis.

The results were immediate and devastating and poor Primo has never been the same man since then. Perhaps Godoy will have better luck. At any rate, he's going to give it a try and you can't rule a guy out for trying.

MIAMI DEFEATS TOLEDO ROCKET TEAM 42 TO 37

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7 — Miami

University was firmly entrenched on the top rung in the race for state basketball honors today.

Miami chalked up its 11th victory of the season against one setback at the expense of Dayton last night. However, the Redskins had to go into an overtime to gain the 42 to 37 win.

Bowling Green continued its climb by annihilating Heidelberg, 53 to 28, in an Ohio Conference game. Ohio University again showed its class in turning back Cincinnati 60 to 48.

In Ohio conference frays, Mt. Union edged out Otterbein, 44 to 41, and Ohio Northern turned back Wittenberg, 46 to 40.

In other games, Akron defeated Baldwin-Wallace, 35 to 24, Defiance won from King's College of New Jersey, 61 to 41; Denison stopped Wilmington, 46 to 28; Hiram edged Allegheny 31 to 28; Kent State took a close one from Western Reserve, 40 to 36; Marshall proved too strong for Xavier, 51 to 47; Rio Grande walked over New River State, 64 to 36; and Westminster swamped Ashland 62 to 46.

ARTURO PROVES HE CAN PROVIDE JOE WARM FIGHT

By Bill Corum

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—They are going to roll out the Barrow in Madison Square Garden Friday night, and we fight fans may have a barrel of fun. You never can tell about a fight. Especially a heavyweight fight.

Joe Barrow Louis is scheduled to defend his heavyweight title against Arturo Godoy, a rugged fellow from Iquique, Chile.

If the fight runs to expectations, it is likely to be quite Iquique for Arturo. And yes, a little Chile, too. I repeat, however, that nobody ever knows for sure about an honest fight, and if this isn't going to be an honest fight, the boys are guilty of not confiding in me.

But Godoy is a tough hombre, who leaves the good neighbor policy behind him when he crawls through the ropes and into the ring. In such circumstances there is always the temptation to conjecture on what might conceivably happen, and once in a blue moon it does. Remember Dempsey and Firpo and this same Louis and Tommy Farr?

A game fighter never can be completely discounted, and Godoy has proved his gameness more than once. In fact, twice against Tony Galento alone, and surely nobody has forgot so soon that Louis found "Two-Ton Tony" a rough customer until he had emptied both tons. One in the first and one in the third.

Thus it is easy to understand how the finer minds of the fancy have been busy figuring ways and means for Arturo all week long, and interjecting many an "if" into their experting on the coming encounter. In discussing prizefights and horse racing "if" is the safest word there is.

HERE'S REPORT OF OVERNIGHT SPORTS EVENTS

By International News Service

Arturo Godoy scoffs at the possibility that Joe Louis will knock him out Friday night but the Broadway bookies are quoting 5 to 2 that Godoy won't answer the bell for the sixth round.

Glenn Cunningham will stage one of his last big time races in Penn A.

FLOOD CONTROL MEETING RAISES HOPES OF MAJOR SCIOTO VALLEY PROJECT

TWO DELEGATES OF C. OF C. VOICE COUNTY'S NEEDS

Survey Said To Be Complete For Construction Of Dams On Many Streams

Robert A. Smith and William D. Radcliff, who represented Circleville and Pickaway County, Tuesday, at the annual meeting of the Flood Control Congress, had returned home Wednesday pleased with the progress the campaign to obtain federal money for work along the Scioto River and other streams in the Ohio Valley is making. The meeting was held in Portsmouth with more than 100 delegates from various communities present.

Mr. Smith spoke briefly in the interest of Pickaway County, declaring that because there are no dams controlling the waters of the Scioto that in the spring and winter the county suffers from flood damage while in the summer and fall a water shortage is prevalent.

He urged construction of flood control and water conservation dams on the streams that pour into the Scioto River. Mr. Smith, who was sent to Portsmouth by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, received much applause after his remarks.

Army Survey Drawn

The local delegates were informed by army engineers that a survey has been completed which calls for flood control and storage dams on Darby, Olentangy, Deer Creek, Walnut, Paint and Salt Creek. The location of the proposed structures has not been announced, this fact being kept secret by the army engineers.

The Ohio Valley Congress is interested in 74 projects between Pittsburgh and Cairo, Ill.

Importance of a large attendance of representative citizens of the Ohio Valley before the War Department Appropriations Subcommittee at Washington, Thursday, in an effort to induce committee to increase its appropriations for flood control to the $133,000,000 appropriated last year, was stressed at the conclusion of the meeting.

The annual congress ended with a dinner in the Masonic Temple attended by 200 persons, including many of the more than 100 delegates who were present for the morning and afternoon sessions to present the case of their respective cities and communities.

Henry Bannon, Portsmouth attorney, who was toastmaster, blamed fear of flood for the declining status of the City of Portsmouth rather than a defeatist attitude.

General Thomas M. Robins, Assistant Chief of the United States Army Engineers, the principal speaker, said the annual report of the army engineers had fixed at $59,000,000 the sum which could be spent profitably on flood control in the Ohio Valley during the next fiscal year. He said 16 projects are to be started if funds are sufficient. The speaker said national preparedness and flood control should go hand in hand, adding that this nation could not afford the menace of the flood in event of war.

Dr. Holzer Elected

At the morning session, the organization elected: Dr. Charles E. Holzer, Gallipolis, President; Forrest Ingraham, Point Pleasant, Vice President; F. E. Vigor, Ashland, Vice President; Reno Hoag, Marietta, Treasurer; E. Van Rawn, Huntington, Secretary, and Alan N. Jordan, Portsmouth, Executive Secretary.

Jordan presided at the morning session until the arrival of Ingraham. Jordan again took charge of the program in the afternoon and introduced the various delegates as well as Major L. A. Pick, who was in charge of the symposium by United States Army Engineers.

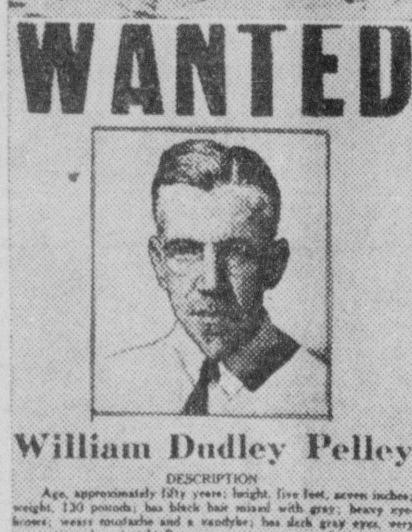

Delegates expressed concern over the action of Congress in cutting the Federal appropriations for flood control for the current year to $70,000,000 after having

APPEARING dramatically before the Dies committee which had vainly sought him for questioning for months, William Dudley Pelley, right, author and leader of the Silver Shirt movement, denied knowing Congressman Martin Dies, top center, head of the committee. Earlier, Dies committee members had asked Attorney General Robert Jackson, top left, to investigate what they termed were forged letters purporting to link Dies and Pelley. The letters were put into the congressional record by Congressman Frank Hook (D) of Michigan, lower center. In lower left is a police circular which was distributed when Pelley was sought by police on charges of fraud and felony.

Dudley White In G.O.P. Race For Senate Post

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—While Democratic possibilities continued to mark time, the race for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator from Ohio got under way in earnest today with the announcement by Congressman Dudley A. White, Norwalk publisher, that he would seek the post.

White's announcement came a week after Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, declared he would seek the GOP nomination.

However, several prominent Republicans still were reported weighing the advisability of entering the contest, among them James N. Linton, Columbus, a member of the party's state central and executive committees; Louis J. Taber, Columbus, National Grange Master, and Congressman Thomas Jenkins, Ironton.

Democratic possibilities remained silent on the question, apparently awaiting some definite word as to the plans of U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey. The senior senator and former Ohio governor was reported considering becoming Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

White, 13th district congressman serving his second term, jumped into the contest with a formal announcement before the annual gathering of the Huron County McKinley club at Norwalk last night.

White pledged himself to a program that included attempting to keep America out of a foreign war, seeking to solve the unemployment problem and working for "lasting national recovery," White declared.

White pledged himself to a program that included attempting to keep America out of a foreign war, seeking to solve the unemployment problem and working for "lasting national recovery," White declared. "There is but one measuring rod of real recovery—JOBS." Every energy of government must be directed to returning our nine million unemployed to regular jobs at real American wages. It is here that New Dealism has failed most disastrously.

He asserted he would not attempt to "out-deal the New Deal."

More than a dozen towns and cities in the Ohio River Valley sent delegates to promote interest in flood control and conservation projects which would be to their interest. Delegates attended from Marietta, Circleville, Georgetown, Ashland, Ironton, Huntington, Parkersburg, Point Pleasant, Zanesville, Circleville, Columbus, Cincinnati, and other cities.

German pilots in Colombia. Ambassador Braden, however, had little success. It was difficult, at that time, to ascertain whether Pan American was responsible for the German pilots, or whether SCADTA was responsible.

Meantime the Civil Aeronautics Authority began examining the financial set-up of Pan American's Colombia subsidiary. It was found that Juan Trippe, as Pan American president, after buying 84 percent of SCADTA's stock, had then turned around and handed 51 percent of the stock back to SCADTA owner Von Bauer. The stock was placed in escrow, so that while Pan American actually owned it, the German manager could vote it.

GERMAN PILOTS CONTINUE

Under the management arrangement, German pilots continued to fly the subsidiary line in Colombia. Trippe maintained that they had become Colombian citizens, many had married Colombian wives and were no danger to the Canal. He pointed out that the German pilots on their regular routes were never closer than 250 miles from the Panama Canal.

High Army officers pointed out, however, that a plane could get from Colombia to Panama in no time; also that the pilots were being trained over extremely difficult terrain around the Andes, thus creating a force which, even though returned to Germany, would always be familiar with this vital territory.

Pan American vice president George Rihl has now made three trips to Colombia and is working out a new set-up whereby German interest is to be eliminated completely. Under one proposal SCADTA is to be owned one-third by Pan American, one-third by the Colombian Government, and one-third by a Colombian company.

A meeting was held in Colombia last week regarding this, and it is hoped the plan will go into operation soon, although some last-minute hitches have developed. Meanwhile German pilots are still operating planes adjacent to the Panama Canal, but they are always accompanied by Colombian flight officers.

MECHANICAL SLEUTHS

Uniformed guards make nightly inspection rounds in the big government buildings, but the real sentinels of the multi-million dollar structures are electrical machines. Elaborate automatic signal systems, equipped with buzzers, bells and light instantly detect trouble and flash the alarm.

Chief hazard is spontaneous combustion fires in libraries, supply rooms and machine shops. When a blaze occurs an automatic control system flies into action. A chart in the guard room records the location of the flame and its intensity. If something breaks down in the power room, warning is flashed with a crash of bells.

Most modern system of the automatic watchdogs is the system in the stately Greco-Roman Federal Reserve building on Constitution Avenue. Its electrical controls make a written record of everything that goes on, with a special feature known as the "operator's delinquent system."

If the operator falls asleep or meets with an accident, red lights flash all over the building. The device also tattles on guards who fail to punch patrol boxes on time. Note—All the guards and elevator operators in the Federal Reserve building are college students. They are the handsomest crew in Washington but their service is about the worst.

70 YEARS OF SERVICE

What does a Million Dollars mean?

A million dollars represents many things to many people. To beneficiaries of insurance through the Standard Oil employees' Mutual Benefit Association, the one million dollars paid out in the last 11 years has meant help and comfort—at that critical time when life's span has suddenly ended for one of our SOHOANS.

Besides providing death benefits through insurance, the Association's policy also assures sickness benefits—amounting to two-thirds of regular pay for as long as 52 weeks. And, in addition, Standard Oil employees cooperate with their company in a pension plan that is exceptionally broad and liberal.

At Standard Oil we believe "Mutual Benefit" really means mutual help whenever the need or emergency arises. For after all, ease of mind for those unpredictable events makes daily working and living a lot happier—a lot better!
